SUDDEN DEATH OF CYRUS A. BRANCH, ESQ., OF JAMES CITY .- Mr. Cyrus A. Branch, of James City county, died suddenly on Friday last, while returning from Charles City county, where he had been several days diligently engaged taking depositions in an important case in which he was counsel. He went by New Kent Courthouse en route home, and stopped there on the morning of the day of his death. He conversed with the sheriff and other gentlemen, and was apparently in his usual health. He also stopped at Barbamsville, twelve miles distant, and nearer his home. It was after leaving this place and going a short distance down the road that he was violently attacked with heart disease, of which he died. When found by the negroes no marks of violence could be discovered about his person. A coroner's jury of James City was summoned to make the proper inquiries, and Dr. Vernon P. Jones, of New Kent, who was present, gave as his opinion that he died of the disease already menannittee on the Fire De- tioned. The deceased was a native of Manchester, and read law in the office of his ed by the committee to | uncle, Judge Robert Stanard. He removed to the county of James City in the year the names of several 1846, where he was admitted to the bar, and mittee decline to grant | where he enjoyed an extensive and lucrative practice for more than a quarter of a century. In 1861, when Dr. Charles M. Hubbard resigned his seat in the State Senate Mr. Branch was elected to succeed him, and served one term in that body.

SCHEME FOR RETIRING THE PRESENT

Mr. John J. Mackinnon, representing the American Bond-Funding and Banking Association (limited) of London, was in Richmond during the past week or ten days. He came to consult with Governor Kemper, Treasurer Hunter, and some of the leading nnanciers of the city, in regard to the debt of Virginia. His Association is accredited for fair dealing and capacity to execute whatever they undertake by Duncan, Sherman & Co., of New York. Among its members and stockholders are many of the largest capitalists of Great Britain-such men as the Rothschilds, Barings, and Gilliatts.

They propose to fund the entire debt of the southern States, and have already opened negotiations with several Governors. The matter will be brought before the Legislatures of those States at the sessions to be held this winter. In reference to the debt of Virginia, which amounts to about $30 .. 000,000, exclusive of past-due and unpaid interest and the one-third allotted to West Virginia as her fair share of the ante bellum indebtedness, Mr. Mackinnon offered to fund it in bonds running ten years and bearingfour per cent. interest in gold, or in bonds running twenty years bearing five per cent. interest in gold-the principal and interest to be paid only in London. The Association prescribes as one of the conditions of the contract it proposes to make with the State that the money to pay the principal and interest of the new funded debt shall be derived from a fixed portion of the revenue to be inviolably set apart for that purpose. To accomplish that end, they furnish copies of such acts as it will be necessary for the General Assembly to pass to insure the desired success.

The scheme, it is said, was drawn up by eminent counsel in England and America. Its authors believe it is amply sufficient to secure the payment of interest and principal as they fall due. It provides that the Auditor shall every year levy such direct tax on the property of the State as will be sufficient to pay the interest and raise a sinking fund. The money raised by this taxation is to be kept separate from all other funds of the State, and is to be sacredly appropriated to the designated object. In case the Auditor who has recently accepted a call to Grace refuses or neglects to raise this tax, according (Episcopal) church in this city, preached at to the plan, any bondholder is to have the right to apply to the courts for a mandamus to compel him to do so; and the courts are to be armed with the power to make the Auditor execute his duties under the contract. The new bonds are to be delivered by the State Treasurer to the Association as fast as the Association or their agents are ready to exchange therefor the outstanding bonds in sums not less than $100,000. The Association are represented to own or control at least $15,000,000 of the present bonds of the State. They believe they will have no difficulty in selling the new bonds at a higher price than "consols" now command in the markets of the country, and thus will be able debt bearing four per cent, interest for ten cent. interest for twenty years. The whole funding process is practically to be carried on through this British association. The Association, it is expected, will be reimbursed for its risk, trouble, and expense, by the enhanced value of the new bonds over and above the present outstandweek, special services have been held, at ing bonds. The new bonds, they calculate, who own "consols" in exchanging them coupons, now a constant source of irritation and trouble to the State, would nearly all be withdrawn from circulation. Mr. Mackinnon left' Richmond for the South yesterday. It was generally thought in financial circles, where the matter has been discussed for a week, that some understanding had been arrived at between the Governor and him. It was, however, believed that the Governor would not consent to recommend to the General Assembly to embark in the scheme unless it could arrange to have the bonds run for thirty years and yet bear no greater interest than four per cent. Within the past week or two the bonds of Virginia and of North Carolina have made a decided advance in the markets of the Union. This, men of information say, is owing to the prospect of a satisfactory adjustment of the debts of the two States as suggested by this American Funding and Banking Association of London.

SERENADE TO HIM LAST NIGHT

An Elequent Speech of Thanks and to Belle Isle. Congratulations.

Hon. John Goode arrived in the city from Norfolk by yesterday afternoon's train. He went to the Exchange Hotel, and during the evening a large number of our prominent citizens called upon him and paid their respects, and congratulated him upon the gallant fight he made us the leader of his party in the district during the recent congressional campaign.

The fact that he was here having become known, the Kemper Kampaign, Old Dominion, and Excelsior clubs procured the First Regiment band last night and gave him a serenade. The music and the noise of a cannon placed at the intersection of Franklin and Fourteenth streets collected a crowd of several thousand persons about 9 o'clock, and Mr. Goode was enthusiastically called for. He promptly appeared upon the Franklin-street steps of the Exchange Hotel, and was introduced by Mayor Keiley.

Mr. Goode warmly expressed his thanks for the hearty welcome given him. Especially did it move him coming from a people whose courage and recuperative powers under disasters and difficulties had excited the admiration of the world. For Richmond's sake particularly he hoped soon to see the James River and Kanawha canal completed, when she might become, as she ought long ago to have been, the manufacturing and commercial centre of the State, [Applause.] The honor indicated by the large and impromptu outpouring of her people he accepted not so much as a compliment to himself as to the gallant Virginian whom he had the honor to lead in the late political conflict. [Applause.] He had but endeahe say of the courage, constancy, and devotion of the Conservatives of the Second district? In 1872 Platt was elected by a majority of 5,225; last year the Radicals carried the district by about one thousand nine hundred; and now, if he had not beaten him, he had at least made him roost lower for some time to come. He believed he was elected honestly and legally [cries of "Good!" "Good!"], and he intended to contest the seat, and believed he would get it. At the great mass-meeting held in Norfolk a few days ago they had instructed him to pursue the fight to the end, and, so help him God, he meant to do it. He would leave the arbitrament of his claims to the fair tribunal of the nation in the event the certificate of the State Board of Canvassers was awarded Mr. Platt, which was by no means certain.

Applause.] Mr. Goode said that from all parts of the Commonwealth he had received letters arging him to contest the seat. He would without a doubt do so. It was not his cause. It was the cause of Virginia, and he was called upon to assert her rights. If half ofthe reports which had come to him were true, most shameful frauds had been perpetrated by the Radicals in his district. There was colonization in Prince George and Sussex; intimidation at the navyyard; illegal registration on the day of election and previous to the election, and all sorts of violations both of the State and Federal election laws. What were they to do? Were the public wishes to be defeated? [Voice: "No, not in this'ere crowd."] He and his constituents asked nothing but what was right, and would submit to nothing that was wrong.

Alluding to the necessity of Virginia having proper representatives, he referred to the inancial question as one of the most important measures that would engage the attention of the next Congress. The Forty-third Congress was utterly incompetent to deal with t, and had disappointed the expectations of the country, and utterly failed to relieve the prevailing financial distress-the result of last year's panic. . What was wanted was the reduction of interest on the public debt, reduction of Government expenses, and a stable currency, not dependent upon the whims of Congress and the politicians, and responsive to the wants of commerce and trade. [Applause.] He rapidly reviewed the result of the late elections; called them the people's victories; ridiculed the failure of the southern-outrage thunderbolts forged at the Chattanooga Convention, and expressed the utmost hopefulness for the future. For himself, and he be-lieved for the entire South, he wanted peace between the sections and the races. [Applause.] He wanted the sweet wings of the white messenger of peace to overspread the entire land, and he desired the Government diverted back to constitutional channels, but made pure, and honest men installed in the places so long defiled by unworthy officials.

Applause.] Mr. Goode here proposed to conclude his address. The crowd lustily demanded that he should go on. He replied that he could not go on; his fight was over; he was unharnessed and his bow was unstrung, and he could not tune himself up at such short notice. Yet he must congratulate the Conservatives of the metropolitan district upon their glorious victory. "Redeemed, regenerated, and disenthralled" they were. The news from all quarters was glorious, and it was unparalleled in history, unexampled in the mutations of politics. Might we not hope that the day of our redemption was drawing nigh?

The meaning of the grand Democratic-Conservative triumph was that the sins of the Radicals were finding them out, and that hereafter the people and not the custom-house rings were to rule. In conclusion, he told the crowd what he believed to be the mission of the great party which has arisen in opposition to the Radicals. He had no doubt they would be true; that they would carry the ship of State iato constitutional waters, and save it from the third-term despotism. Then not only would on this subject should address, without delay, Powour children but our children's children rise up and call them blessed. [Great applause.] Mr. Goode's speech was heard with the most earnest and respectful attention, and not a man left the crowd while it was being delivered, notwithstanding the night air was decidedly raw. On the bridge connecting the Exchange Hotel and Ballard House, and in the windows of the two hotels were ladies listening. His effort was unusually eloquent and able, and greatly impressed all who heard it. The general wish was expressed that he should get his seat, to which it is thought he has been fairly and honestly elected.

Mayor Keiley, Colonel W. S. Gilman, and Captain T. Hampden Chamberlayne, editor made brief speeches, and then the crowd dispersed.

A WATCH-THIEF ARRESTED .- A colored woman from Hanover named Lucy Green, on Tuesday night, while visiting her sister, the cook of Mrs. B. W. Saunders, milliner, on Broad street, managed to possess berself of Mrs. Saunders's gold watch and chain, worth $100. She was arrested at her father's house, in Hanover, on Saturday by Detective O'Dwyer, and the property recovered. HUSTINGS COURT .- The following cases were disposed of in this court yesterday: Bartlett Fisher (negro), charged with stealing a lot of chickens from B. H. Morrisette, was tried, found guilty, and sentenced to receive twenty-five lashes and confinement in jail for six months. This is the third time this party has been tried for this offence The first time there was a hung jury in the case-eleven being for conviction and one for acquittal. At the next trial he was found guilty, and his term of confinement in jail was fixed at four months; but as the jury failed to state when the offence was committed his counselapplied for a new trial, which the court granted. The result of this is as above stated.

Mary Fisher (negro), charged with perjury, was tried and acquitted. MAYOR'S COURT .- Nothing worthy of note transpired in this court yesterday.
